Alexander Borisovitch SHORNIK, Russian Jew, was born on October 15, 1920 in Harbin, Manchuria. According to his own statement, he left Harbin for Tientsin together with his parents in 1922 and resided in that city until November 1939 when he came to Shanghai. His father, who was a Soviet citizen, left China for the U.S.S.R. in 1936 and is still residing in that country.

Whilst in Tientsin, the applicant also became a Soviet citizen, but at present intends to apply for emigrant papers. Upon his arrival in Shanghai on November 6, 1939, he worked for his brother, V. Shornik, who is a partner in the business known as General Transportation Company, 128/531 Museum Road.

On February 13, 1940 he secured a position as a salesman with the Mercury Press.

There is nothing in the Municipal Police records detrimental to his character.
